Overview

The essence of transition is preparing children to become independent in their healthcare and to ready them for a transfer into an adult healthcare environment. It is a broad generalization, but while tools exist for transition, the practice is extremely variable across healthcare environments and between specialties.

There is growing recognition that improvements in pediatric care mean that many children with complex conditions can expect to live a long and productive adult life. It is important that they receive the healthcare they need to ensure that any underlying condition or treatment has minimal impact on this. This meeting aims to consider the complexities of care for these patients in the urological, gynecological and colorectal specialties. International experts will be providing insight into their practice for these patients and how they overcome some of the practical and medical challenges in this exciting and growing area of clinical practice.

The course is designed for pediatric and adult surgeons, colorectal specialists, urologists, gynecologists, nurses, advanced practice providers and physiotherapists.

Learner Outcomes

Participants will report increased knowledge of pertinent clinical conditions of pediatric patients experiencing the transition of care and propose practice improvements to their teams based on evidence-based guidelines, tools and resources presented at the conference.

Objectives

- Review the principles of diagnosis and management of anorectal defects
- Discuss the challenges of short- and long-term postoperative care
- Describe the diagnosis of fecal incontinence and constipation and the difference in their management
- Recognize indications for re-operative surgery
- Discuss management of associated urologic and gynecologic problems
- Review the comprehensive management approach to cloacal extrophy
- Explain or outline the use of the posterior sagittal approach for a variety of conditions
